«Only the best deserve your trust.»

Security is an elementary need and indeed an important basis for a positive feeling about life. We are committed to it accordingly: Securitas is the best partner when people, companies or public authorities wish to make everyday life more secure. So that you can move about as freely as you are used to. Capability has made Securitas the epitome of professional, trustworthy, economical security. To guarantee protection as a valuable asset now and in the future is our goal – and underpins your freedom.

A leader does not compromise.

Securitas has been providing security since 1907 and has evolved from what used to be a guarding company into a broadly based, dynamic service enterprise. Due to consistent customer and market orientation, Securitas – today with over 6000 employees – is firmly established as a leading provider of security services.

As part of the Swiss Securitas Group, with its two divisions of security services as well as alarm and security systems, Securitas makes its contribution to high-quality solutions being available on the Swiss market in concentrated form – with no compromises and from a single source.

Our mission statement:

Our claim: to justify the trust of satisfied customers day by day.

What distinguishes us: expert staff.

Our recipe for success: consistently customer-oriented processes.

Our foundation: a thoroughly fit company, with goal-oriented management.

What we strive for: to be the number one in security, today and tomorrow.

Securitas offers:

the right solution for every security requirement

quality at transparent prices

trustworthiness and extensive experience

stable business relationships based on partnership

a high level of acceptance among the public

«Your requirements keep changing – and so do we.»

One step ahead through education.

No matter which one out of the wide range of security services you wish to make use of, with Securitas you have the certainty of working with highly qualified partners. We achieve this professionalism through a training programme which continuously integrates the needs of our customers. Because we believe in the value of progressive working conditions and a high degree of personal responsibility, you may count on highly motivated teams.

We fulfil our claim of employing only the best people first of all by careful selection, a spotless reputation forming the essential basis for trust in this respect. Purpose-designed courses and special training then ensure that Securitas staff are able to draw from rich experience and up-to-date knowledge in all situations. Regular refresher courses provide the assurance that our security professionals are today already equal to the tasks of tomorrow.

Progress with the latest technology.

New challenges demand responses in line with the times. This is true in particular for security technology. Securitas is by tradition a pioneer in this area. To provide optimum service, technical support is a must: for reliable communication, for control and management purposes. Securitas operations centres are the key element around the clock in providing information for customers, staff on the job, police, firefighters and rescue forces.

The company has been involved in research and development for decades – and today, thanks to close co-operation within the Swiss Securitas Group, presents itself as a technological leader. Securitas continues to develop the traditional service spectrum, and this is your benefit: a mix of professional services and the latest technologies reduces costs and makes maximum security possible.

The Securitas staff:

- are highly qualified and motivated
- undergo training matched to the requirement
- possess psychological sensitivity
- are competent and dependable
- are subject to strict management and coaching structures

The combination of man and technology:

- minimises costs
- enhances the effectiveness of protection
- ensures reliable information flow
- leads to effective total solutions
